Shoaff Park is the scene of the city Cross Country finals, where Lane's cross country team joins their opponents and are lined up at the start. They are off at the sound of the gun.

Mr. Tallman brews one of his chemical creations in front of his 4th period class of 8th graders. Protective goggles are worn by the students during classroom experiments.

Eighth grade homemakers work hard to produce delicious looking fudge. Somehow their fudge didn't turn out as well as they had expected it to.

Several of Mrs. Schoeff's 9th grade French students stop by after school for some extra help with their French. She makes sure to keep one eye on the camera as she explains irregular verbs.

Go, Fight, Win, yell excited fans! Vikings support the Varsity football team by attending freshmen games and cheering the guys on to victory. There is always a big crowd of enthusiastic Viking fans.

V. J. Menor and Tim Brown concentrate on drawing a replica of a rock for art class. Drawing is only one of the projects Ms. Mills requires for eighth grade students.

Freshmen girls gather around the drinking fountain after school to catch up on the latest gossip. Next is their trip home to begin studying.

These students in Mr. Tallman's excellent 8th grade science class invent a replacement for their teacher. The only problem is, how do you get red hair to grow on a computer?

Mrs. Ealing gives office worker Bob Boydston a quick errand to run. Office workers are kept busy delivering messages to students and teachers. Only 9th graders with study halls are permitted to become office workers.

Mr. Clark helps a student with his math work while the other of his class members flash their biggest smiles for the sneaky yearbook photographer.

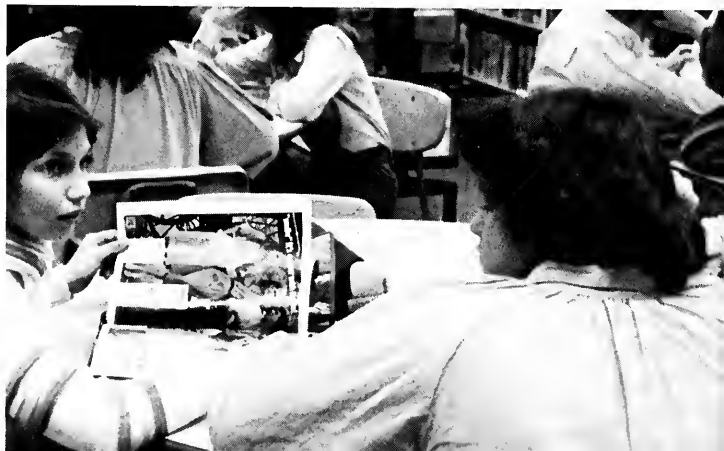

Mike Kerwin puts all his industrial skills to work to finish his shop project. Many useful and decorative things are made in Industrial Arts classes throughout the course of the year.

Oh! Groans Tony Stuart as he complains of his tired, aching arms and legs after a long hard day of avoiding the "crutch-thieves!"

Cheryl Pyle and Suzanne Verduce spend free time discussing the latest magazine fashions. Students are allowed to use magazines during their weekly visit to the library.

Renee Collins checks her instruction sheet for information about the next step in her sewing project. Following instructions is important for an acceptable project.

Anita Schaper and Brent Vian have steady hands when opening the clitellum during the dissection of their worm.

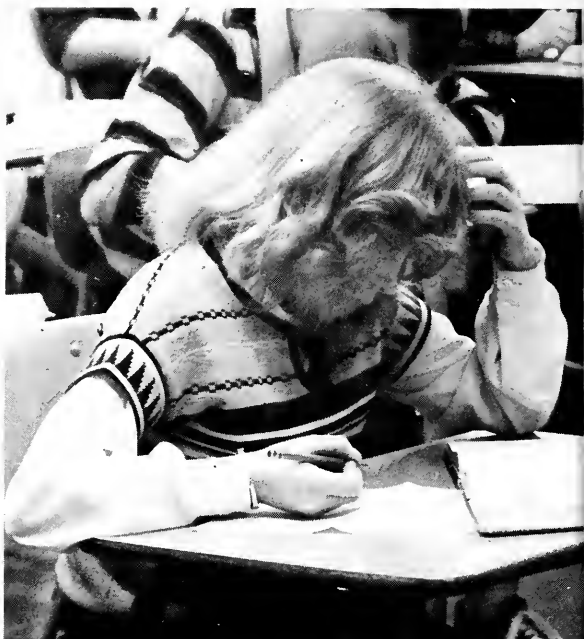

Worms are only one thing freshmen dissect in biology class.

Mrs. Aldrich's days are spent spotting students during the gymnastic unit. Here Teresa Lymon gets help with her "Peter Pan" imitation on the beam.

Thom Guitard, Anita Schapper and Bob Reed put on their thinking caps to try to pass a Driver's Ed. test, a necessity before they receive their licenses.

7th grader Laura Leonard stares blankly at a seemingly unsolvable math problem. Learning Math Concepts requires a lot of studying at school, and at home. 7th graders find math at Lane a little different than in elementary school.

Jenny Drummer, Diana Camey, Billy Stafford, Patty Bandor, Pam Hatcher, Elisa Steinbach and Dawn Exner were the winners for the best-looking costumes at the Halloween Dance. As you can see, they definitely deserve these prizes for the creativity of their costumes.

Count Dracula is not the only male chauvinist affected by the Women's Liberation Movement. Freshman Janet Groves introduces female vampirism at Lane's Post-Mortem Halloween Dance.

Mark Carter and Barbie Hicks are always willing to help — even if it means getting out of class to count candy. Over 12,000 boxes of candy were sorted according to student's orders. Candy sale profits purchase extras for Lane.

Varsity Shares Divisional Title

"End around, guard pull" calls quarterback Mark Carter as the Freshmen team breaks for the next play in the game against Blackhawk. The tremendous plays called in the huddle led the team to a 34-8 victory over Lane's rivals — the Eagles.

Scott Smith hangs on to the ball during a tackle that ends his successful 15-yard run for an additional Viking first down. Brent Vian and Chuck Schnitker pursue him to contribute extra blocking.

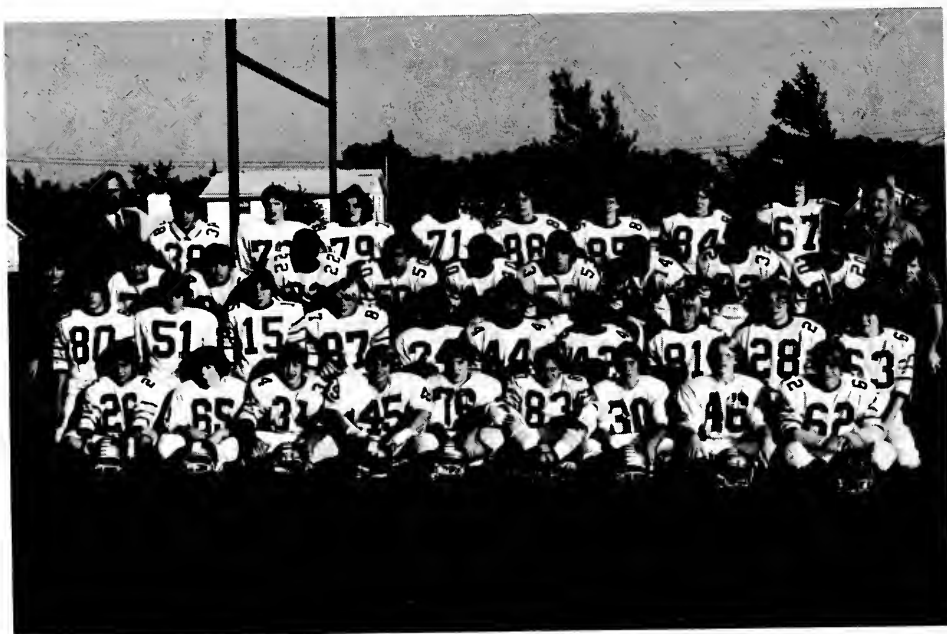

Bob Reed dashes into the end zone adding 6 points to Lane's already accumulated 14 point lead against the Northwood Cardinals. Excellent offensive and defensive blocking led the varsity team to a 4-1 record at the end of the season.

Mr. Arnold shouts a last reminder of the play to Mark Dumoulin on his return to the huddle. On the sideline, John Mills stands ready for his call into action.
